Release of 2011 FAR/AIM Products

Good Things Come to Those Who Wait

ASA is committed to bringing you and your customers the most current and complete reference materials available. The FAA's release of the scheduled AIM Change 1 (effective August 26, 2010) dictates our FAR/AIM book production schedule to ensure your customers have the most current and complete information for the "new year." Without this AIM Change 1, a 2011 FAR/AIM would be current only through February 2010. Having the most up-to-date book is worth the wait — your customers expect this.

Orders are now being accepted for 2011 FAR/AIM products. All ASA FAR/AIM Series books are indexed, show clearly-marked changes since the last release for quick reference, and the FAR/AIM book has a suggested study list of regulations and AIM paragraphs as well as full-color graphics. Updates are available as free downloads from the ASA website for instant access to regulation and procedural changes. Readers can sign up for ASA's email Update Service for automatic notification when a rule has changed. This free subscription service keeps readers aware of all FAA changes throughout the year and is the most comprehensive of its kind anywhere.
