New Notepads and Approach Plate Binders Products to Enhance IFR Cockpit Organization

Newcastle, WA—ASA’s new notepad and approach plate binder products aid instrument pilots in keeping their cockpits organized.

The basic notepad is arguably one of the most important cockpit items in the instrument pilot’s toolkit. Having one handy should be simple enough, but often you can’t locate one at the most inopportune moment. Two new ASA notepads are made to fit standard four- and seven-ring approach plate binders so instrument pilots can keep notepads with their approach plates for easy storage and access. This convenient solution once and for all eliminates the distraction of searching for one.

Three new 7-ring approach plate binders are designed for maximum durability and equipped with a ring system to keep your approach plates securely organized and easily accessible.
